

NURSING PASSION ESSAY

I have always been passionate about nursing and admired nurses. Preparing for exams and tackling my essays, reflecting on my practice.

I am a caregiver right now at an adult foster home, caring for people that have mental disorders. On one of my child births I went in at in the morning and had no time for the epidural. Their example has inspired me to love nursing by making a difference in the lives of others. Now that I have begun my own journey down the path of becoming a nurse, I am amazed each day by the positive effect that holistic care has on the patients that I serve. In , the opportunity presented and I realized nursing was meant for me. What would your ideal weekend involve? Great job. It was during college that I began to explore the option of becoming a nurse and several college experiences enabled me to realize that a fulfilling career would have involve not only meeting the physical needs of my patients, but also their mental, emotional, and spiritual needs through personal interaction. Having that nurse there with me when I was in labor, after delivery and to help in the days that I was in the hospital was amazing. I feel so good inside when I see improvement in my patients and also when giving emotional support by holding hands of family members who have just experienced tragedy. Where are you training? I will not be able to enroll in any other Nursing school in the state of Georgia for two years. Click here to learn more. Nursing has so much to offer and I am fascinated by anything new that I am introduced to. Those are the two most important parts really, so make them stronger than the rest of your essay. I have worked in a medical setting for four years. Relationships were fostered with clients and their significant others, and I enjoyed the opportunity to support them in times of joy, as well as times of sadness. Usually a baby with this condition is delivered by cesarean rather than vaginal to prevent further damage, but this situation was not the case. This is not just a career change for me it's a life style change for me. Why did you decide to become a nurse? In elementary school I wanted to become a doctor so that I could help people get better. My friend Liz, who died three years ago of bowel cancer. My joy is caring for my patients, and the trust that develops with that relationship. Two semesters before this, the dean of the Nursing School told me because I earned a grade of a "D" in anatomy and physiology; I am an ineligible candidate for Nursing School. These experiences served to solidify my passion for nursing and substantiated my belief that personal relationship with patients and holistic care is of utmost importance. They had patience and showed the parents how to meet the needs and care for their baby. After working as a critical care nurse, I changed my focus and became a Nurse Educator. There was a nurse getting vital signs, one starting an IV, others were dealing with paper work, and yet more were getting ready to go to the operating room with this baby.